

Took a little stroll through Madison Square Park this morning. Here's some photos:

Flat Iron Building

Pine Cones on Fountain

Bucky Ball Sculpture

Bucky Ball close-up

Around the base of the sculpture are several loungy benches from which to appreciate it. The sculpture itself is bedecked with fancy-ass lights which trace various routes around the ball. These benches let one get completely absorbed into this acid-trip experience, at least after dark they do.